

APRIL 2023

The responses provided align with current policies relating to enlisted education and the NCOPDS of today. As the Army adapts to an ever-changing environment, it is paramount that the learner remains flexible.

Frequently Asked Questions:

I completed SSD. Do I need to complete the DLC requirement associated with the resident PME course I am scheduled to attend?

Under current policies, no requirement exists to complete previous levels of the Distributive Leaders Course.

I am competing for promotion on a DA Centralized board. I completed SSD appropriate at that time. Do I need to complete the current level of DLC to remain eligible for the board?

The simple answer is no. Under current policies, no requirement exists to complete previous levels of the Distributive Leaders Course.

Always reference current messages and the MILPER message guidance associated with your centralized board. These messages will provide the most up to date information and delineate requirements for consideration.

Are DLCs worth college credit?

Yes. DLC I thru V each have an American Council of Education (ACE) recommendation for 3 credit hours. Remember to submit the documentation to your institution of higher education to have the credits put into your transcript.

I have a unique question not addressed in any of the frequently asked question selections or an issue that I am unable to resolve. Whom can I contact to ask a question?

A team of experts within the NCOLCoE Directorate of Curriculum Development will answer your questions. Simply visit the Contact Us link on the World Campus site and submit a contact form.

The form can be accessed at <https://www.ncolcoeworldcampus.army.mil/Contact-Us/>
